

DOCTOR PRAISES U. S. FREEDOM

Dr. Tindall Makes Stirring Address to Association of Oldest Inhabitants.

Members of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants listened to a stirring address yesterday morning by Dr. William Tindall at the old Union Engine House, Nineteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue northwest.

"Next to the Sermon on the Mount," said Dr. Tindall, "the Declaration of Independence is the most vital pronouncement in the moral progress of mankind."

Scores of the city's oldest citizens braved the heat and came to the celebration, which they regarded as the greatest in their long lives.

The patriotic exercises were presided over by Henry L. Bryan. The Rev. William Taylor Snyder pronounced the invocation, following which Mr. Bryan read "America's Creed." With Recording Secretary Benjamin Reese at the piano, the members then sang the "Star Spangled Banner."

The Declaration of Independence was read by Samuel D. Ross. Dr. Thomas Calver, the poet-laureate of the association, then read an original poem appropriate to the occasion.

Sidelights of the Parade

A beautiful girl dressed in the costume of an Irish princess of the long ago and draped with the orange and green of the flag of the Irish Republic, attracted a great deal of attention on the crowded streets of Washington today.

The sides of the automobile in which the parade was carried the legend: "All Free Peoples in Parade." (Official)

I Am Refused a Place See: A White Race Held in Chains.

"There'll Be No Peace In The World Until Ireland Is Free."

Within the car, which was decorated with green and orange and white, rode a charming Irish girl, the very picture of the Irish poet, "Dark Rosaleen."

Ireland's friends in Washington were not willing the little Green Isle should be forgotten on Independence Day in Washington—the Independence Day for which so much Irish blood was shed in Washington's army—even if officially she was refused a place in the great Historical Pageant of Free People.

It fell to the lot of the moving picture men to pull off the most daring stunt of the day. During the ceremony in the morning, at the base of the monument, two movie men in two airplanes, with army pilots, skimming 500 feet above the crowd, mounted on top of the planes and busily worked their picture machine while the thousands below wildly applauded.

Secretary Baker, on the ground in front of the speakers' stand at the time, was under a battery of movie and press cameras.

"The best thing of it all was to see them big sailors a bear walking," chuckled a large new woman as the end of the procession was passing down the avenue, at Eleventh Street.

A roar of a demonstration that grew into a frenzy as the liberty float approached, rolled along the line of march. Columbia, upholding the torch of Liberty, on the front pedestal of a giant bonfire, was the most enthusiastically recognized of any of the ideas represented.

"John, what are they hollering about?" shrieked a little woman in the rear of the crowd, as she tugged at the arm of her 6 foot 4 escort. "It's just the Indians passin'," said John as he looked back from above the hats in front of him.

Three thousand frequenters of the Bathing Beach yesterday afternoon were most enthusiastic when Manager Leitch megaphoned "Willard won the fight in the second round." From their antics it seemed that the majority were rooting for Dempsey.

The crowd at the Capitol was evidently in a mood to enjoy a pleasant job last night.

Just as the float bearing Omar Khayyam, the tent maker, drew near the Vice President's stand, Omar drew something from his "little jug" into a tin cup and drank it.

Immediately a band in front of the float started to play "Maryland, My Maryland," but the words the crowd hummed was, "How Dry I Am, How Dry I Am."

Omar's "Thou" was considered the prettiest woman in the parade.

A policeman waded through the crowd at the Capitol with a girl about 15 years of age.

"Does anyone know what a Poland float is?" he asked. "This little girl got lost from one of them."

Some way in the crowd, evidently feeling the heat, "Why it's an iceberg with a pole stuck in it and a bucket of mint juleps at the bottom."

"Smart fellow," sneered the policeman. "He thinks that is a hot one."

When the women (f) passed the reviewing stand, all of them dressed in white and looking as fresh as daisies, a man standing dangerously close to a headquarters detective, began to shout:

"Stan! up, everybody!" he yelled. "Alvinah got no manners! Doncha know 'nuff to stand up when the women go by?"

"Looks here, Johnny," said the detective. "You are the fellow that has no manners. Why don't you know your own looks tend to spoil those nice white uniforms?"

Whereupon he, of the big voice, shrunk up and faded out of sight.

"I didn't see the Salvation Army in the parade," complained an old lady at a Pennsylvania Avenue soda fountain.

Fireworks and Tableaux Wind Up Glorious Day

Five Gorgeous Scenes Enacted on Capitol Steps Tell in a Classic Manner Of Current Happenings.

Following the final review of the parade last night, five of the most gorgeous scenes that Washingtonians have been given the privilege of viewing were enacted on the steps of the capitol.

The advent of "Peace" was portrayed by a score of young women arrayed in long flowing robes of pink, each carrying the golden trumpet of harmony.

When the angel of peace entered a dove, was released and circling over the head of the central figure, flew higher and higher until finally it was lost to view.

Next came a number of classic dancers garbed as wood nymphs, and they presented a pretty sight as they danced up and down the steps.

The United States, offering liberty to all nations of the world was shown, when young women bearing flags of each nation ascended the steps to the torch of liberty altar.

Capital and Labor were shown each clasping the hand of the other in good fellowship.

Unity of purpose among the States and co-operation in caring for the men returned from the service, was shown when forty-eight young women formed a chain without a break, while Columbia placed wreaths of victory on the brows of the navy and the army, represented by men in uniform.

Direction of the five scenes was under the direct supervision of Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest, who is also given credit for the success of the design and beauty of the many floats in the long procession.

STARS AND STRIPES FLY IN LONDON ON FOURTH

London, July 4.—Americans celebrated Independence Day in Great Britain with a huge demonstration in Caxton Hall this morning, and at a score of banquets in the leading cities.

The Stars and Stripes were flown from public buildings.

Closer Anglo-American relations were urged in speeches by Ambassador Davis, Winston Churchill, British Secretary of War, and Viscount Bryce, former Ambassador to the United States.

Special programs also were held by the American Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. and the Knights of Columbus.

BRITISH CRY PROTEST AGAINST HUN MUSIC

London.—A flood of protest letters to the newspapers followed advertisements of concerts at Queen's Hall, a week given up to Beethoven, Bach, Mozart, List, Schubert, Brahms and Weber. It is urged that German music should be barred if the bar is kept up against German goods, traders, workers, waiters, foods and wine.

"Admit the lot—or bar the lot," one writer said.

Two discharged sailors, at the Petworth celebration, expressed great joy over the rendition of "Reveille" by the band. Because it reminded them of old times? Not at all. Because, in some way, the kick had been taken out of this once formidable strain.

"Do you find the thrill produced by these elaborate but refined works equivalent to that given by the cannon-cracker of yesterday?" was the question propounded by a friendly stranger to an 8-year-old kid at the Petworth celebration.

The youngster danced up and down while he contemplated a rocket which sprinkled the sky with fiery flowers. "Oh, Gee!" he howled.

Denmark Wants Coal From American Mines

Copenhagen.—Denmark is looking to the United States to furnish much of the coal formerly supplied by Germany. However, there is a strong pro-British commercial movement on in Denmark and it is probable that British commerce will be favored in all other respects over the United States.

Scrapped War Goods Hurt German Trade

Berlin.—German optical firms are complaining that their own government is hurting their business in Scandinavian countries by offering at low prices large stocks of various optical instruments obtained in scrapping useless army material.

Fireworks and Tableaux Wind Up Glorious Day

More than 15,000 People Gathered on Ellipse to See Display that Is a Fitting Finish to July 4th.

More than 15,000 people were gathered on the ellipse last night when the fireworks display started. Crowds hastening to the Capital plaza hurried to the Monument lot to secure good points of vantage from which to view the spectacle.

Ground pieces, of Wilson, the American flag and patriotic mottoes brought cheers of delight.

Rockets, throwing off multi-colored lights, made the place as bright as mid-day, incidentally causing many couples to look self-conscious and wonder if little brother was in the offing.

Thunder from bursting light bombs brought back to many men the remembrance of nights overseas.

ARMY AND NAVY Reserve Staff Selections.

All of the boards convened last month to select reserve staff officers of the rank of lieutenant commander for promotion to the rank of commander have made their reports. The only one so far approved by the President is that of the civil engineers. The board recommended the following civil engineers of the naval reserve force for promotion to the rank of commander in the reserve: Lieutenant Commanders Eliot C. Brown, Edmund S. Nugent, Asa W. K. Billings, Oscar A. Mechin, Herbert L. Rogers, Edward C. Sherman, Frederic W. Southworth and John A. Myler.

Further Release in Navy.

An "Albany" dispatch has gone to the naval service directing the release of 6 per cent of each command during each of the months of July, August and September, thus continuing the process of demobilization throughout the summer and until October 1, when the new appropriation act fixes the complement at 171,000. The release so directed at 6 per cent of the navy reserve force, men who enlisted for the duration of the war, and men who enlisted for the first time between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, the latter class having been greatly increased by reason of the LaFollette amendment on the floor of the Senate, which fixes the date as February 3, 1919, when men are presumed to have enlisted for the war. Authority is also granted to release any men of these three classes, in addition to the 6 per cent quotas, whose services can be spared, and which will doubtless greatly increase the percentage of output.

Progress of Navy Dry Docks.

Work is progressing satisfactorily on the large naval dry docks which have been under construction recently. Dock No. 3 at the Philadelphia navy yard will probably be ready to dock vessels by January 1, 1921. No. 4 at Norfolk was substantially completed on April 1 of this year. Another U. S. S. Wisconsin for docking on May 5. Docks 6 and 7, also at Norfolk, are being constructed by the U. S. Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation under the direction of Rear Admiral Harris, civil engineer corps. It is estimated they will be available for docking vessels in November of this year. The large Pearl Harbor dock, Hawaii, an account of which recently appeared in this paper, was pumped out April 10, and the present progress indicates that the dock will be ready for docking a large ship by August 15. Another Pacific dock is at Hunter's Point, Calif. which was used last October for docking destroyers, and has been made available since for docking large ships. The huge dock at South Boston was unwinded on June 30, and it is estimated that it will be ready for docking ships about August 15.

Reading of Declaration of Independence Features Celebration.

The old-fashioned idea of preceding Fourth of July celebrations with the reading of the greatest instrument of human liberty, the Declaration of Independence, featured a victory peace observance on the lawn of the Hyde Public School Building, Georgetown yesterday morning. From early morning grown folks and little folks flocked to the spacious lawn until space was well crowded. William A. Hickey, veteran of the Spanish War and the Philippine campaign, was the presiding officer, and read the Declaration of Independence. The principal speaker was Sgt. Jeremiah O'Connor, late of the Forty-third United States Infantry. Miss Rosemary Sullivan, of Addison Public School, in the singing of patriotic songs, recited "Our Flag and My Flag." Miss Margaret Trunnell presided at the piano.

The other children who contributed to the program were: Madeline Seely, Evelyn Trunnell, Catherine DeLoe, Kenneth Trunnell, Florence Reardon, Charles Trunnell, Lillian Schneider, Dorothy Powell, Richard Harvey, Eva Brewer, Ida May Brewer, Elizabeth Brewer, George Irving, Jr., Elsie Powell and Irvine B. Irving. Master Vincent A. Fowler acted as guard of honor to the big flag that floated over the assembly.
